Knowing yourself better and understanding others with the help of Personality Dimensions

By completing this training, participants will receive the facilitator certification for the Personality Dimensions workshop, and will also have access through Career LifeSkills to the materials needed to deliver this workshop (in a group setting or during one-on-one consultations).

Where effective training and development is essential for meeting strategic objectives, an understanding of personality theory is a very effective tool in facilitating team creation and building; improving corporate communications; enhancing customer service and satisfaction; and in providing innovative solutions to problems by tapping into the creative energy of every temperament preference.

This interactive human relations and communications process/model is presented in an informative, interactive, fun and self-discovery format.

Personality Dimensions is a great tool for:

- Understanding our own strengths and weaknesses;
- Recognizing and understanding the strengths and preferences of others;
- Improving communications and interpersonal relationships;
- Realizing that differences are "gifts" not faults.

This tool will be a definite asset to the participants work and personal lives.

Deadline for registration: November 15th, 2021
